

(d) whether Government have explored the possibilities of new markets for this commodity?

The Minister of Commerce (Shri Karmarkar): (a) and (b). There is no evidence of any real slump in the mica industry. Leaving out 1951-52, the period of stock-piling when there was an unusual rush to obtain supplies, the overall level of exports has been fairly well-maintained.

With the disappearance of a sellers' market, there is no doubt a demand from buyers that supplies should be made according to higher standards of quality.

(c) and (d). For stabilising the industry, Government have been advised that the quality for export should be improved by adopting a universal standard for grading mica. Action is being taken in this direction.

Other suggestions include:—

(1) Creation of central organisation for taking over export operations; and

(2) Promotion of research work to encourage use of mica in the country.

These suggestions are under examination and no decision has been reached. Wherever possible, this item is included for Export in Trade Agreements with foreign countries.

The West Bengal Government have informed the Government of India that there has been some rise in the prices of dhoties and sarees, which could not be attributed, according to their report, to any local shortage.
