

Amendments to the Atomic Energy Act, 1962 will have to be considered at the appropriate time.

(b) Developed countries like Japan and South Korea are pursuing a large nuclear power programme. In USA and Western Europe, however, its growth has slowed down mainly due to saturation in demand for energy and energy conservation measures. Nuclear power capacity in the world is growing particularly in the countries of the Asian Region.

(c) The cost of generation of electricity from nuclear power plants in India is comparable to the cost of generation from coal-thermal stations located at about 1000-1200 Km. from coal pit-heads. The cost of generation from nuclear plants is expected to be increasingly competitive with that from thermal plants over the plant life time due to substantially lower fuelling costs. The cost of hydel generation is lower than nuclear and thermal generation.

(d) Foreign investment in nuclear power sector may facilitate introduction of new technologies other than PHWR technology and allow the possibility of overseas funding in this area.
