EDITORIAL NOTE

On rare occasions, members of the Lok Sabha and the Rajya Sabha gather together in the historic Central Hall of the Parliament to be addressed by a visiting Head of the State. November 8, 2010 was one such occasion, when His Excellency, Mr. Barack H. Obama, President of the United States addressed the members of both the Houses of Parliament of India at a function organized under the auspices of the Indian Parliamentary Group (IPG). Acknowledging India as an ancient civilization of science and innovation, he appreciated the speedy progress India has made during the last few decades. He also recognized India's role as a world power with a leading role in establishing peace in the region and the world. In his address, President Obama, while paying a glowing tribute to the Father of our Nation hailed India as a global role model. He said in his speech: "I am mindful that I might not be standing before you today, as the President of the United States, had it not been for Gandhi and the message he shared with America and the world". Speaking of India's transformation, Mr. Obama applauded the role of Green Revolution in countering the hunger and starvation. He believed that as global partners, we can promote prosperity in both our countries by creating the high-tech, high wage jobs of the future. He also suggested that as global leaders, the United States and India can also be partners for global security. Mr. Obama also praised India for its economic reforms and appreciated its cultural diversity. He hoped that the relationship between the two countries, bound by shared interests and shared values, would be one of the defining partnerships of the 21st Century.

Delivering the Welcome Address, the Vice-President of India, Shri Mohammad Hamid Ansari hoped that Mr. Obama's visit would bring India and USA closer, help create a world order free from the evils of extremism, intolerance, injustice and terrorism, and devoted to the pursuit of new vistas of humanism and technological innovation in the service of humankind.

In her Address on the occasion, the Speaker, Lok Sabha, Smt. Meira Kumar said that India is a land of diversities, and there lies its strength. Ideas, religions and cultures have been encouraged to interact and create a powerful and unique synthesis, one that believes in the essential oneness of human beings. She added that our Parliament does not only legislate, it is also an agent of social change. Further, she emphasized that India and the United States share a common commitment to strengthen the edifice of global peace. As the world's two largest democracies, we need to work together for the purpose. She observed that Mr. Obama's Address in the Parliament has further strengthened the friendship between India and the United States. We include the texts of these Addresses in this issue of the Journal.

Another important event worth-mentioning was the Fourth Conference of Commonwealth Parliamentary Association (CPA) India and Asia Regions, held in Raipur, Chhatisgarh in October 2010. While inaugurating the Conference, the Speaker, Lok Sabha, Smt. Meira Kumar highlighted the role of India and Asia Regions CPA Branches in promoting the ideals of justice, equality and freedom for attaining the target of inclusive development of the people in the region. Speaking on the theme of the Conference "Challenges of Development before the Developing Asian Nations", she expressed her strong belief that real progress could be achieved only when the benefits of development trickle down to the most disadvantaged and marginalized sections of the society. We include the text of the Inaugural Address of the Speaker, Lok Sabha, Smt. Meira Kumar in this issue of the Journal.

We also carry in this issue, the other regular features, viz. Parliamentary Events and Activities, Parliamentary and Constitutional Developments, Sessional Review, Recent Literature of Parliamentary Interest and Appendices.

In our constant pursuit of making the Journal more enriching and useful, we always invite and welcome suggestions for its further improvement. We also welcome practice and problem-oriented, non-partisan articles in the field of parliamentary procedures and institutions from members of Parliament and State Legislatures, scholars and all others interested in the field of parliamentary political science.

LOK SABHA, SMT. MEIRA KUMAR AT THE
FOURTH CONFERENCE OF CPA INDIA
AND ASIA REGIONS HELD AT RAIPUR
(CHHATTISGARH) ON 26 OCTOBER 2010

The Fourth Conference of CPA India and Asia Regions was held at Raipur, Chhattisgarh from 25-29 October 2010. The Speaker, Lok Sabha, Smt. Meira Kumar delivered the Inaugural Address on 26 October 2010.

INAUGURAL ADDRESS BY THE SPEAKER, LOK SABHA, SMT. MEIRA KUMAR

Honourable Presiding Officers and Delegates from India and Asia Regions of the Commonwealth Fraternity, Honourable Ministers, Honourable Members of Parliaments and Legislatures, Secretary General CPA, Secretary General Lok Sabha, Distinguished Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen:

It is indeed an honour for India to host the Fourth Conference of CPA India and Asia Regions in this historical city of Raipur which was founded in 14th Century AD by Kalchuri King Ram Chandra. As the Chairperson of the Executive Committee of CPA India Region, I extend a warm welcome to each one of the distinguished participants. I congratulate Chhattisgarh Legislative Assembly for organizing the Conference in this beautiful city and for making such excellent arrangements.

The India and Asia Regions CPA Branches have collectively focused on promoting the ideals of justice, equality and freedom for attaining the target of inclusive development of the people in our region. Keeping pace with the emerging global challenges, several new dimensions of inter-parliamentary cooperation have been added since the first Conference of Asia Region was hosted by the Andhra Pradesh Legislature at Hyderabad in 2004. This Conference affords us an opportunity to deliberate from the parliamentarians' perspective on issues of mutual concern and to share and gain from our rich national experiences.

The theme of this Conference is Challenges of Development before the Developing Asian Nations. This contemporary subject has assumed added significance given the nature and enormity of the issues faced by developing Asian countries in the process of nation-building.

I strongly believe that real progress can be achieved only when the benefits of development trickle down to the most disadvantaged and marginalized sections of our society. As we transcend into an emerging power of 21st Century, we must ensure that the interests of the poorest of the poor and weakest of the weak are protected. As parliamentarians, we have to play an effective and decisive role in formulating policies and adopting strategies and mechanisms designed at accomplishing sustainable economic growth and equitable distribution of wealth which are critical for inclusive development.

In this globalized era, our economies are interlinked and interdependent. The events in Asia have a considerable impact on shaping the contours of global development. Therefore, each one of us has to play a constructive and proactive role in generating an enabling environment for inter-governmental cooperation.

Our countries today are faced with the daunting challenge of efficient management of our resources for sustainable development. While on the one hand, the rate of economic growth has to be accelerated to ameliorate the problems of poverty and deprivation, on the other we have to confront the issues of population growth, widening income disparities, increasing urban migration and fast depleting natural resources. Indian Parliament has taken the initiative of enacting progressive social legislations and creating mechanism to empower the disadvantaged sections. Our constitution makes it incumbent upon every Indian citizen to protect and improve our natural environment. However, our success will depend on collectively evolving and adopting country specific sustainable development strategies designed to achieve just, fair and balanced economic growth.

Friends, we must remember that peace and harmony are vital prerequisites for political stability and sustainable growth. But unfortunately the scourge of terrorism has emerged as a major threat to democratic societies hitting at their very foundation. All of us have felt the pangs of terrorism. Our country specially has been a victim of cross border terrorism. The continuing terrorist attacks all over the world underscore the necessity of strongest collective action by international community to combat this menace. The first plenary session of this Conference will very aptly focus on “Terrorism and Naxalism: Threat to democracy—Need for joint effort in the region.”

Terrorism and Naxalism not only imperil political stability and territorial integrity of the affected countries and regions but also endanger life and livelihood of the people thereby hampering the developmental process. Unfortunately, today terrorism has crossed national boundaries and distance is no guarantee against terrorist onslaughts. Incidents of terrorism sponsored across borders by States have increased alarmingly in the recent past posing a grave threat to the sovereignty and integrity of democratic nations. The terrorist attack on Mumbai in November 2008 is a grim reminder of the fact that the legislatures have to strive towards strengthening inter-governmental cooperation against terrorism.

The rise of Left Wing Extremism called ‘Naxalism’ has further aggravated the intensity of the problems adversely impacting the security and developmental landscape of this region. In fact, this region has been witness to a number of violent attacks on police forces, abductions and killing of innocent people and destruction of key economic infrastructure by naxalites. Our experience indicates that these elements resist developmental activities under the pretext of campaigning against displacement necessitated by the implementation of large developmental projects. Their activities are not merely a law and order issue in the affected areas but have also acquired socio-economic and political dimensions. We must understand that movements which deprive ordinary citizens of their life and liberty and undermine development have no place in a democracy. We have to take initiatives to bring back those influenced by cult of violence into the mainstream. It is imperative to collaborate with all the stake holders—the government, corporate houses, entrepreneurs, civil society organizations and the public—in our endeavour to bring peace and prosperity in this region. Our Parliaments and legislatures have to play a pivotal role in evolving consensus on combating terrorism in an integrated and effective manner.

Providing access to sufficient and affordable food to all is another challenge of immense magnitude especially when the world population is poised to grow to 8 billion by 2025. The second plenary session of the Conference will be devoted to deliberations on ‘Food Security and Cooperation at Regional Level: Role and Responsibility of Parliamentarians’. The food security concerns are not only at the core of our national interests but have also been reflected in the first Millennium Development Goal which seeks to reduce by half the world's population experiencing hunger by 2015. As parliamentarians, it is our responsibility to ensure basic food security to all our people.

The Indian Constitution recognizes right to life as a fundamental right of every citizen and food security is an essential dimension of that right. Our Parliament has constantly guided the Government in formulating policies like NREGA aimed at providing food security to all. However, it is a stark reality that even today a large percentage of our population lives below the poverty line and does not have access to proper food. The same is true of many South Asian nations where a vast chasm exists between the rich and the poor often triggering conflicts affecting peace and harmony. It is therefore incumbent upon us to eradicate this economic apartheid by adopting progressive plans and policies.

Viewed in a wider perspective, the present crisis-like situation on the food security front is a consequence of a combination of several factors such as global warming and climate change that adversely affect agricultural production, increasing international fuel prices leading to higher transport costs, exorbitant cost of agricultural inputs, impediments in global agricultural trade and speculations in agricultural commodity markets. It is therefore crucial for parliamentarians to devise measures compatible with the goal of ensuring food security and sustainable socio-economic development.

Increasing the availability of food is vital for guaranteeing food security to all. India occupies 2% of world's geographical area but supports 17% of its population. We are moving from resource exploitative agriculture towards regenerative agriculture in our endeavour to enhance production in a sustainable manner. As a part of food security intervention, our Parliament has enacted various progressive legislations for bringing about land reforms thereby ensuring equity in the distribution of land holdings. The Indian Parliament is open to adopt new ideas and suggestions to further improve our system.

Although individual efforts have had a salutary effect, I believe that as the legislatures we have to collectively address this concern. It is a matter of immense satisfaction that the Governments of this region have been striving to ensure food security at the regional level. The SAARC Food Bank established at the SAARC Summit at New Delhi in April 2007 has emerged as a regional food security reserve for the member states to mitigate food shortages and related emergencies.

In today's scenario, it is imperative that we work in a regional cooperation framework to decisively contend with the issue of food security and the challenges of terrorism and naxalism that are impeding the developmental process. It is only with inter-governmental cooperation and integrated concerted action that we can achieve the objective of inclusive development. Our Commonwealth Parliamentary Association has a very strong international presence and can play a pivotal role in determining solutions to these issues. Distinguished Delegates, our Conferences have emerged as an invaluable forum for sharing experiences on diverse areas of mutual interest. I am sure our deliberations on the Agenda topics will enable us to learn from each others' best practices and assist in finding ways to surmount the diverse developmental challenges that confront us.

Before I conclude, I would like to express my deep appreciation to the Honourable Governor Shri Shekhar Dutt; Honourable Chief Minister Shri Raman Singh; Honourable Speaker Shri Dharam Lal Kaushik; officers of the Chhattisgarh Legislative Assembly and all those associated with the organization of this Conference.

With these words, I have great pleasure in inaugurating the Fourth CPA India and Asia Regions Conference.

Thank you.

ADDRESS BY THE VICE-PRESIDENT OF INDIA AND CHAIRMAN, RAJYA SABHA, SHRI MOHAMMAD HAMID ANSARI

The Honourable Barack H. Obama, President of the United States of America; Honourable Pradhan Mantri ji; Honourable Speaker, Lok Sabha; Honourable Members of the Parliament of India; Distinguished Guests, Ladies and Gentlemen:

This is one of those infrequent occasions when the Rajya Sabha and the Lok Sabha Members come together for a meeting to honour and hear, a visiting dignitary of great eminence. Our guest today is from one of the world's oldest democracies and we, in the largest, rejoice in welcoming him.

Relationships between countries, Mr. President, are reflective of a complex web of considerations. Some of these are ephemeral, others more durable. The latter pertain to principles and values that transcend material considerations. Elements of what has been called the American Creed with its focus on liberty, constitutionalism, the law, democracy, individualism and political and cultural egalitarianism inspired and influenced our own Constitution.

We admire the tenacity of the American spirit and its capacity for introspection and course correction. You have demonstrated both during your presidency. The troubled world we live in necessitates it. We appreciate your initiative to “seek the peace and security of a world without nuclear weapons” and to take concrete steps towards it. We ourselves have been for long an advocate of non-discriminatory and universal nuclear disarmament.

In over six decades of independence, India has endeavoured to impart substance to the principles of liberty, equality and fraternity and to promote political as well as social and economic justice. We have accommodated diversity. Above all, we have sought to eschew conflict and promote peace.

The United States and India, Mr. President, have much to do together. Our areas of agreement are considerable, and expanding. We venture to hope that our two countries would work purposefully for an open world based on the principles of equity and dedicated to peace, freedom and prosperity for all people. We both repose faith in John Rawls’ dictum that ‘rights secured by justice are not subject to political bargaining or to a calculus of social interests’.

We are geographically removed from each other but face similar threats and challenges and have to be sensitive to each other’s concerns and critical interests. As vibrant democracies we cherish the right to disagree within a framework of our endeavour for the common good.

We are confident that your visit would bring our two people closer, help create a world order free from the evils of extremism, intolerance, injustice and terrorism, and devoted to the pursuit of new vistas of humanism and technological innovation in the service of humankind.

I now invite the distinguished guest to address the gathering.

ADDRESS BY THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, HIS EXCELLENCY, MR. BARACK H. OBAMA

Mr. Vice-President, Madam Speaker, Mr. Prime Minister, Members of Lok Sabha and of Rajya Sabha, and most of all, the people of India:

I thank you for the great honour of addressing the representatives of more than one billion Indians in the world’s largest democracy. I bring the greetings and friendship of the world’s oldest democracy—the United States of America (U.S.A.), including nearly three million proud and patriotic Indian Americans.

Over the past three days, my wife Michelle and I have experienced the beauty and dynamism of India and its people from the majesty of Humayun's Tomb to the advanced technologies that are empowering farmers and women who are the backbone of Indian society; from the Diwali celebrations with school children; to the innovators who are fueling India's economic rise; from the university students who will chart India's future; to you—leaders who helped to bring India to this moment of extraordinary promise.

At every stop, we have been welcomed with the hospitality for which Indians have always been known. So, to you and to the people of India, on behalf of me, Michelle and the American people, please accept my deepest thanks. Bahoot dhanyavad.

I am not the first American President to visit India. Nor will I be the last. But I am proud to visit India so early in my Presidency. It is no coincidence that India is my first stop on a visit to Asia or that this has been my longest visit to another country since becoming President. For in Asia and around the world, India is not simply emerging; India has emerged. And it is my firm belief that the relationship between the United States and India—bound by our shared interests and our shared values—will be one of the defining partnerships of the 21st century. This is the partnership that I have come here to build. This is the vision that our nations can realize together.

My confidence in our shared future is grounded in my respect for India's treasured past—a civilization that has been shaping the world for thousands of years. Indians unlocked the intricacies of the human body and the vastness of our universe. It is no exaggeration to say that our information-age is rooted in Indian innovations including the number 'zero'.

Of course, India not only opened our minds, she expanded our moral imagination with religious texts that still summon the faithful to lives of dignity and discipline; with poets who imagined a future where the mind is without fear and the head is held high; and with a man whose message of love and justice endures—the Father of your Nation, Mahatma Gandhi.

For me and Michelle, this visit has, therefore, held special meaning. Throughout my life, including my work as a young man on behalf of the urban poor, I have always found inspiration in the life of Gandhiji, and in his simple and profound lesson 'to be the change we seek in the world', and just as he summoned Indians to seek their destiny; he influenced champions of equality in my own country, including a young preacher named Martin Luther King. After making his pilgrimage to India a half century ago, Dr. King called Gandhi's philosophy of non-violent resistance the only logical and moral approach in the struggle for justice and progress.

So, we were honoured to visit the residence where Gandhi and King both stayed—Mani Bhavan. We were humbled to pay our respects at Raj Ghat. I am mindful that I might not be standing before you today, as President of the United States, had it not been for Gandhi and the message he shared and inspired with America and the world.

An ancient civilization of science and innovation, of fundamental faith in human progress, this is the sturdy foundation upon which you have built ever since that stroke of midnight when the Tricolour was raised over a free and independent India. And despite the sceptics who said that this country was simply too poor, too vast, or too diverse to succeed, you surmounted overwhelming odds and became a model to the world.

Instead of slipping into starvation, you have launched a Green Revolution that fed millions. Instead of becoming dependent on commodities and exports, you invested in science and technology and in your greatest resource—the Indian people. And the world sees the results, from the super-computers you build, to the Indian Flag that you put on the Moon.

Instead of resisting the global economy, you became one of its engines—reforming the ‘Licensing Raj’ and unleashing an economic marvel that has lifted tens of millions of people from poverty and created one of the world’s largest middle classes.

Instead of succumbing to division, you have shown that the strength of India—the very idea of India—is its embrace of all colours, all castes, and all creeds. It is the diversity represented in this Chamber today; it is the richness of faiths celebrated by a visitor to my hometown of Chicago more than a century ago, the renowned Swami Vivekananda. He said that, “holiness, purity and charity are not the exclusive possessions of any Church in the world, and that every system has produced men and women of the most exalted character.”

Instead of being lured by the false notion that progress must come at the expense of freedom, you built the institutions upon which true democracy depends—free and fair elections, which enable citizens to choose their own leaders without recourse to arms; an independent judiciary and the rule of law, which allows people to address their grievances; and a thriving free Press and vibrant civil society which allows every voice to be heard. This year, as India marks sixty years with a strong and democratic Constitution, the lesson is clear: India has succeeded, not in spite of democracy; India has succeeded because of democracy.

Just as India has changed, so too has the relationship between our two Nations. In the decades after Independence, India advanced its interests as a proud leader of the Non-Aligned Movement. Yet, too often, the United States and India found themselves on the opposite sides of a North-South divide and estranged by a long Cold War. Those days are over.

Here, in India, two successive Governments led by different parties have recognized that deeper partnership with America is both natural and necessary. In the United States, both of my predecessors—one a Democrat, one a Republican—worked to bring us closer, leading to increased trade and a landmark Civil Nuclear Agreement.

So, since that time, people in both our countries have asked: What is next? How can we build on this progress and realize the full potential of our partnership? That is what I want to address today—the future that the United States seeks in an inter-connected world and why I believe that India is indispensable to this vision and how we can forge a truly global partnership—not just in one or two areas, but across many; not just for our mutual benefit, but for the benefit of the world. Of course, only Indians can determine India's national interests and how to advance them on the world stage. But I stand before you today because I am convinced that the interests of the United States and the interests we share with India are best advanced in partnership. I believe that.

The United States seeks security—the security of our country, our allies and partners. We seek prosperity—a strong and growing economy in an open international economic system. We seek respect for universal values. And we seek a just and sustainable international order that promotes peace and security by meeting global challenges through stronger global cooperation. And to advance these interests, I have committed the United States to comprehensive engagement with the world, based on mutual interest and mutual respect. And a central pillar of this engagement is forging deeper cooperation with 21st century centres of influence and that must necessarily include India. Now India is not the only emerging power in the world. But relationships between our countries is unique, for we are two strong democracies whose Constitutions begin with the same words, the same revolutionary words, “We the people”, we are two great republics dedicated to the Liberty and Justice and Equality of our people. And we are two free market economies where people have the freedom to pursue ideas and innovation that can change the world. That is why, I believe that India and America are indispensable partners in meeting the challenges of our time.

Since taking office, I have therefore, made our relationship a priority. I was proud to welcome Prime Minister Singh for the first official state visit of my presidency. For the first time ever, our Governments are working together across the whole range of common challenges that we face. And let me say it as clearly as I can: the United States not only welcomes India as a rising global power, we

President of the United States of America*

As a representative of the world's oldest democracy, it is a true privilege and honor to address the world's largest democracy. May the friendship between our two countries continue to grow in the years to come.

Remarks of President of the USA, Mr. Barack H. Obama in the Golden Visitors' Book

ferently support it and we have worked to help make it a reality. Together with our partners, we have made the G20 the premier forum for international economic cooperation, bringing more voices to the table of global economic decision-making and that has included India. We have increased the role of emerging economies like India at international financial institutions. We valued India's important role at Copenhagen, where, for the first time, all major economies committed to take action to confront climate change and to stand by those actions. We salute India's long history as a leading contributor to United Nations Peace Keeping Missions. And we welcome India as it prepares to take its seat on the United Nations Security Council.

In short, with India assuming its rightful place in the world, we have a historic opportunity to make the relationship between our two countries a defining partnership of the century ahead. And I believe we can do so by working together in three important areas. First, as global partners we can promote prosperity in both our countries. Together we can create the high-tech, high wage jobs of the future. With my visit we are now ready to begin implementing our civil nuclear agreement. This will help meet India's growing energy needs and create thousands of jobs in both of our countries.

We need to forge partnerships in high-tech sectors like Defence and Civil Space. So, we have removed Indian organisations from our so-called Entity List and we have averred to remove and reform our controls on exports. Both of these steps will ensure that Indian companies seeking high-tech trade and technologies from America are treated the same as our very closest allies and partners.

We can pursue joint research and development to create green jobs; give India more access to cleaner, affordable energy; meet the commitments we made at Copenhagen; and show the possibilities of low carbon growth. Together we can resist the protectionism that stifles growth and innovation. The United States remains and will continue to remain one of the most open economies in the world. And by opening markets and reducing barriers to foreign investment, India can realise its full economic potential as well.

As G20 partners we can make sure the global economic recovery is strong and is durable. And we can keep striving for a Doha Round that is ambitious and is balanced, with the courage to make the compromises that are necessary so global trade works for all economies.

Together we can strengthen agriculture. Cooperation between Indian and American researchers and scientists sparked the Green Revolution. Today, India is a leader in using technology to empower farmers like those I met yesterday who get free updates on market and weather conditions on their cell phones. And the United States is a leader in agricultural productivity and research. Now as farmers in rural areas face the effects of climate change and drought, we will work together to spark a second, more sustainable Evergreen Revolution.

Together we are improving Indian weather forecasting systems before the next monsoon season. We aim to help millions of Indian farmers, farming households save water and increase productivity, improve food-processing so crops do not spoil on the way to market, and enhance climate and crop forecasting to avoid losses that cripple communities and drive up food prices.

As part of our food security initiative we are going to share India's expertise with farmers in Africa. And this is an indication of India's rise, that we can now export hard earned expertise to countries that see India as a model for agricultural development. It is another powerful example of how America and Indian partnership can address an urgent global challenge.

Because the health of a nation also depends on the health of its people, we will continue to support India's effort against diseases like tuberculosis and HIV/AIDS. As global partners, we will work to improve global health by preventing the spread of pandemic flu.

Because knowledge is the currency of the 21st century, we will increase exchanges between our students, our colleges and our universities which are among the best in the world.

As we work to advance our shared prosperity, we can partner to address a second priority, and that is our shared security. In Mumbai I met with the courageous families and survivors of that barbaric attack. And here in Parliament, which was itself targeted because of the democracy it represents, we honour the memory of all those who have been taken from us, including American citizens on 26/11 and Indian citizens on 9/11.

This is a bond that we share. It's why we insist that nothing ever justifies the slaughter of innocent men, women and children. It's why we are working together more closely than ever, to prevent terrorist attacks and to deepen our cooperation even further. And it's why as strong and resilient societies, we refuse to live in fear. We will not sacrifice the values and rule of law that defines us, and we will never waiver in the defence of our people.

America's fight against Al Qaeda and its terrorist affiliates is why we persevere in Afghanistan where major development assistance from India has improved the lives of the Afghan people. We are making progress in our mission to break the Taliban's momentum and to train Afghan forces so they can take the lead for their security. While I have made it clear that American forces will begin the transition to Afghan responsibility next summer, I have also made it clear that America's commitment to the Afghan people will endure. The United States will not abandon the people of Afghanistan—or the region—to the violent extremists who threaten us all.

Our strategy to disrupt, dismantle and defeat Al Qaeda and its affiliates has to succeed on both sides of the border. That is why we have worked with the Pakistani government to address the threat of terrorist networks in the border region. The Pakistani government increasingly recognizes that these networks are not just a threat outside of Pakistan—they are a threat to the Pakistani people as well, who have suffered greatly at the hands of violent extremists over the last several years.

And we will continue to insist to Pakistan's leaders that terrorist safe-havens within their borders are unacceptable, and that the terrorists behind the Mumbai attacks be brought to justice. We must also recognize that all of us have an interest in both an Afghanistan and a Pakistan that is stable, prosperous and democratic and India has an interest in that as well. In pursuit of regional security, we will continue to welcome dialogue between India and Pakistan even as we recognize the disputes between your two countries can only be resolved by the people of your two countries.

More broadly, India and the United States can partner in Asia. Today, the United States is once again playing a leadership role in Asia—strengthening old alliances; deepening relationships, as we are doing with China; and we're reengaging with regional organizations like ASEAN and joining the East Asia Summit—organizations in which India is also a partner. Like your neighbours in South-East Asia, we want India not only to "Look East," we want India to "engage East"—because it will increase the security and prosperity of all our nations.

As two global leaders, the United States and India can partner for global security—especially as India serves on the Security Council over the next two years. Indeed, the just and sustainable international order that America seeks includes a United Nations that is efficient, effective, credible and legitimate. That is why I can say today—in the years ahead, I look forward to a reformed United Nations Security Council that includes India as a permanent member.

Now, let me suggest that with increased power comes increased responsibility. The United Nations exists to fulfill its founding ideals of preserving peace and security, promoting global cooperation, and advancing human rights. These are the responsibilities of all nations, but especially those that seek to lead in the 21st century. And so we look forward to working with India—and other nations that aspire to Security Council membership—to ensure that the Security Council is effective; that resolutions are implemented; that sanctions are enforced; and that we strengthen the international norms which recognize the rights and responsibilities of all nations and all individuals.

This includes our responsibility to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons. Since I took office, the United States has reduced the role of nuclear weapons in our national security strategy, and we have agreed with Russia to reduce our arsenals. We have put preventing nuclear proliferation and nuclear terrorism at the top of our nuclear agenda, and we have strengthened the cornerstone of the global non-proliferation regime, which is the Nuclear Non-Proliferation Treaty.

Together, the United States and India can pursue our goal of securing the world's vulnerable nuclear materials. We can make it clear that even as every nation has the right to peaceful nuclear energy, every nation must also meet its international obligations and that includes the Islamic Republic of Iran. And together, we can pursue a vision that Indian leaders have espoused since independence - a world without nuclear weapons.

This leads me to the final area where our countries can partner — strengthening the foundations of democratic governance, not only at home but abroad. In the United States, my Administration has worked to make the Government more open, transparent and accountable to the people. Here in India, you are harnessing technologies to do the same as I saw yesterday at an expo in Mumbai. Your landmark, Right to Information Act, is empowering citizens with the ability to get the services for which they are entitled and to hold the officials accountable. Voters can get information about candidates by text message, and you are delivering education and health services to rural communities as I saw yesterday when I joined an e-Panchayat with villagers in Rajasthan.

Now, in a new collaboration on open Government, our two countries are going to share our experience, identify what works, and develop the next generation of tools to empower citizens. And in another example of how American and Indian partnership can address global challenges, we are going to share these innovations with civil society groups and countries around the world. We are going to show that democracy, more than any other form of Government, delivers for the common man and woman.

Likewise, when Indians vote, the whole world watches. Thousands of political parties; hundreds of thousands of polling centres; millions of candidates and poll workers; and 700 million voters. There is nothing like it on the planet. There is so much that countries transitioning to democracy can learn from India's experience. So much expertise that India can share with the world and that too is what is possible when the world's largest democracy embraces its role as a global leader.

As the world's two largest democracies, we must never forget that the price of our own freedom is standing up for the freedom of others. Indians know this, for it is the story of your nation. Before he ever began his struggle for Indian Independence, Gandhi stood up for the rights of Indians in South Africa. Just as others, including the United States, supported Indian independence, India championed the self-determination of peoples from Africa to Asia as they too broke free from colonialism, and along with the United States, you have been a leader in supporting democratic development and civil society groups around the world. This too is part of India's greatness.

We all understand that every country will follow its own path. No one nation has a monopoly on wisdom, and no nation should ever try to impose its values on another. But when peaceful democratic movements are suppressed as they have been in Burma, for example, then the democracies of the world cannot remain silent. For it is unacceptable to gun-down peaceful protestors and incarcerate political prisoners decade after decade. It is unacceptable to hold the aspirations of an entire people hostage to the greed and paranoia of bankrupt regimes. It is unacceptable to steal elections, as the regime in Burma has done again for all the world to see.

Faced with such gross violations of human rights, it is the responsibility of the international community, especially, leaders like the United States and India to condemn it. If I can be frank, in international fora, India has often shied away from some of these issues. But speaking up for those who cannot do so for themselves is not interfering in the affairs of other countries. It is not violating the rights of sovereign nations. It is staying true to our democratic principles. It is giving meaning to the human rights that we say are universal. And it sustains the progress that in Asia and around the world has helped turn dictatorships into democracies and ultimately increased our security in the world.

Promoting shared prosperity, preserving peace and security, strengthening democratic governance and human rights, these are the responsibilities of leadership. And, as global partners, this is the leadership that the United States and India can offer in the Twenty-first century. Ultimately, though, this cannot be a relationship only between Presidents and Prime Ministers, or in the halls of this Parliament, this must be a partnership between our peoples. So, I want to conclude by speaking directly to the people of India who are watching today.

In your lives, you have overcome odds that might have overwhelmed a lesser country. In just decades, you have achieved progress and development that took other nations centuries. And now you are assuming your rightful place as a leader among nations. Your parents and grandparents imagined this. Your children and grandchildren will look back on this. But only this generation of Indians can seize the possibilities of this moment.

As you carry on with the hard work ahead, I want every Indian citizen to know: the United States of America will not simply be cheering you on from the sidelines. We will be right there with you, shoulder to shoulder because we believe in the promise of India, and we believe that the future is what we make it.

We believe that no matter who you are or where you come from, every person can fulfil their God-given potential, just as a Dalit like Dr. Ambedkar could lift himself up and pen the words of the Constitution that protects the rights of all Indians.

We believe that no matter where you live—whether a village in Punjab, or the by-lanes of Chandni Chowk, or an old section of Kolkata, or a new high-rise in Bengaluru—every person deserves the same chance to live in security and dignity, to get an education, to find work, and to give their children a better future.

And we believe that when countries and cultures put aside old habits and attitudes that keep people apart, when we recognize our common humanity, then we can begin to fulfil these aspirations that we share. It is the simple lesson contained in that collection of stories which has guided the Indians for centuries—the Panchtantra. And it is the spirit of the inscription seen by all who enter this great hall: “That one is mine and the other a stranger is the concept of little minds. But to the large-hearted, the world itself is their family.”

This is the story of India; it is the story of America that despite their differences, people can see themselves in one another, and work together and succeed together as one proud nation. And it can be the spirit of the partnership between our nations that even as we honour the histories which in different times kept us apart, even as we preserve what makes us unique in a globalized world, we can recognize how much we can achieve together.

And if we like this simple concept, be our guide. If we pursue the vision I have described today, the global partnership to meet global challenges, then I have no doubt that future generations, Indians and Americans, will live in a world that is more prosperous and more secure and more just because of the bonds that our generation has forged today.

So, thank you and Jai Hind! And long live the partnership between India and the United States.

ADDRESS BY THE SPEAKER, LOK SABHA,
SMT. MEIRA KUMAR

Your Excellency President Obama; Honourable Vice President, Shri Mohammad Hamid Ansari; Honourable Prime Minister, Dr. Manmohan Singh; Leader of the House in Lok Sabha, Shri Pranab Mukherjee; Leader of the Opposition in Rajya Sabha, Shri Arun Jaitley; Leader of the Opposition in Lok Sabha, Smt. Sushma Swaraj; Chairperson, National Advisory Council, Smt. Sonia Gandhi; Ministers; Members of Parliament; Ladies and Gentlemen:

Mr. President, it is indeed a great honour for the people and the Parliament of India to have the opportunity to listen to you. Thank you for sharing with us your vision of the world as it is, and as it should be. Not only was your address exceptional but your presence here has filled the air with that brilliance and dynamism, which brooks no delay and surmounts every hurdle to realise the dreams of a better tomorrow. Your visit to this august Central Hall is a momentous celebration of democracy. It is a meeting of two great nations with unwavering faith in the power of people. It is an occasion to which our Parliament, representing as it does over a billion people, has been looking forward to.

India is a land of diversities, and there lies its strength. Ideas, religions and cultures have been encouraged to interact and create a powerful and unique synthesis, one that believes in the essential oneness of human beings. This is the legacy we have inherited to which great men like Gandhi have added modern paradigms. It was quite early in the recorded history of our ancient land that democratic institutions flourished at the core of society, which over the years, have shaped our beliefs and convictions. If the present parliamentary system is functioning with exemplary success, it is because our people, nurtured in those enduring traditions and time-tested values, make real the promises of democracy. Our Parliament does not only legislate, it is also an agent of social change.

Your inspiring journey to the office of the President has revived the hopes of generations, old and young alike, in India and across the world about the establishment of a just world order. It has raised the hopes of humanity, particularly of the disinherited ones, waiting for their hour of triumph.

Mr. President, you are the symbol of a new era. In your victory speech two years ago, you had said, "America must play its role in ushering in a new era of peace". India and the United States share a common commitment to strengthen the edifice of global peace. As the world's two largest democracies, we need to work together for this. As

Martin Luther King has said, "Sooner or later all the people of the world will have to discover a way to live together in peace".

We owe our future generations a safe, secure and sustainable world. Poverty, deprivation and injustice are a serious threat to peace. We should join forces to combat these with equitable development, respect for plurality, human rights, rule of law and freedom. Both our countries have been severely affected by terrorism. We in India, deeply appreciate your concern and respect the solidarity you have expressed with us specially during this visit. It is a compulsion of our times to jointly eliminate this scourge.

Some moments are recorded in history as points of reference. Mr. President, this is that moment and I thank you for making it so.

Your Address to the Parliament of India has further strengthened the friendship between our two nations. If this relationship is improved further, we will be able to find out a solution to several complex problems of our countries and the entire world as a whole. Together, we can bring the new dawn which the world has been waiting for a long time.*

I am grateful to the respected Vice-President, respected Prime Minister, Leader of the House, Lok Sabha, Leaders of Opposition in both Houses, Chairperson of the National Advisory Council, Ministers, Members of Parliament and other dignitaries who have graced this occasion and made this programme a success. My special thanks to the Media persons. I compliment the officers and staff of my Secretariat also.

I would like to convey to you, Mr. President, to the First Lady, to the Members of your Delegation, to the Members of the US Congress and to the friendly people of America, the greetings and good wishes of the Members of the Indian Parliament and the people of India.

Namaskar.

Statement by the Minister of Commerce and Industry regarding Export of Non-Basmati Rice to some Countries: Making a Statement on 19 November 2010, the Minister of Commerce and Industry, Shri Anand Sharma said that non-basmati rice was exported to a few African countries during the period December 2007 to March 2009. During that time, the Government had imposed a ban on the export of non-basmati rice. This ban was occasioned by the general rise in food grain prices and an overall assessment of the domestic supply position. In 2008, escalating rice prices and situations of extreme distress in many parts of the world, especially in some Least Developed Countries (LDCs), led to requests to India from some poor African countries to sell limited quantities of non-basmati rice. Keeping in view our close ties with these countries and the delicate supply position they were facing, a decision was taken on diplomatic considerations to authorize the export of limited quantities of non-basmati rice in relaxation of the ban, the Minister informed.

Following questions on the alleged lack of integrity in the process of export of non-basmati rice, the Minister referred to his Statement of 30 July 2009, which comprehensively dealt with such issues. The Minister clarified that only 9 per cent of the amount authorized by the Government was actually exported. The rice was procured from domestically available stocks and was not out of Public Distribution System stocks. The transactions were to be concluded on a commercial basis. The Minister further stated that actual export of rice was completed only in respect of transactions with five countries, namely, Comoros, Ghana, Madagascar, Mauritius, and Sierra Leone. In the majority of the transactions, the recipient African countries nominated both the importing agency in their country as well as the domestic supplier based in India.

The Minister also reported that an enquiry into the matter was ordered. An Additional Secretary in the Department of Commerce was appointed the Enquiry Officer (EO), who went through the records of transactions in the department and the PSUs and also sought responses from the concerned parties. The Enquiry Officer was also tasked to identify all officials of the PSUs directly associated with the decision-making in these transactions. The Enquiry has been completed and duly examined. The Enquiry Officer has identified the officers directly involved. Based on the Enquiry Officer's report, and its detailed examination, appropriate action has been taken, the Minister said.

Besides, remedial action to prevent recurrence of such a situation has been taken. On 8 September 2009, the Directorate General of Foreign Trade issued directions to all PSUs on the export of non-basmati rice stipulating the explicit conditions under which non-basmati rice exports would be permitted. As a sequel to these directions, the Department of Commerce prepared detailed guidelines governing the export of non-basmati rice by Indian PSUs on diplomatic considerations. These guidelines were prepared in consultation with the concerned Departments of the Government and the CVC. These guidelines were issued on 18 February 2010 to the concerned Departments in Government as well as to all PSUs.

B. LEGISLATIVE BUSINESS

The Orissa (Alteration of Name) Bill, 2010 and the Constitution (One Hundred and Thirteenth Amendment) Bill, 2010 (Amendment of Eighth Schedule): Moving that the Bills be taken into consideration, the Minister of Home Affairs, Shri P. Chidambaram said that the Legislative Assembly of Orissa adopted a Resolution on 28 August 2008 that the name of the State specified as "Orissa" in the First Schedule of the Constitution be changed as "Odisha" and translation of the word "Odisha" in Hindi language should be revised accordingly. It also adopted a Resolution stating that the name of the language specified as "Oriya", in the Eighth Schedule of the Constitution be changed as "Odia" and translation of the word "Odia" in Hindi language should be revised likewise. The Government of Orissa also requested the Central Government to take further necessary steps to alter the name of the State and that of its language in English and its Hindi. Government of India decided to accept the request of the Legislative Assembly of Orissa and the State Government. Thus, the Orissa (Alteration of Name) Bill, 2010 seeks to alter the name of the State of 'Orissa' to the State of 'Odisha' and also its Hindi translation. Also the Constitution (One Hundred and Thirteenth Amendment) Bill, 2010, similarly, seeks to change the name of the language of the State mentioned in the Eighth Schedule of the Constitution of India.

Initiating the discussion*, Shri Bhakta Charan Das (INC) said that in the course of history, the name of the state of Orissa has, very many times, changed. Earlier, it was called Udar. In the 16th Century, it took the name Orissa, and since then, that name has been in use. Since the people have resented the use of this term, there is a need to pass the Bills moved by the Minister.

Speaking on the occasion, Shri B. Mahtab (BJD) said that after 75 years, the name of Orissa is being changed to Odisha. Accordingly, the Hindi and English name is being changed. Shri Mahtab said that he had an objection earlier and wanted it to be written as Odissa. But now, he would be sticking to the amendment that has been moved by the Government here and which has been passed unanimously by the Orissa Legislative Assembly.

Sharing his views on the issue, Dr. Raghuvansh Prasad Singh (RJD) said that the Legislative Assembly of Orissa had passed this unanimous Resolution unequivocally, therefore, he requested the Government of India to pass this Bill.

Replying to the discussion, Shri P. Chidambaram expressed his gratitude to the members for supporting these two Bills. He said that by this, the Parliament of India is honouring the wishes of the people of Orissa.

The Orissa (Alteration of Name) Bill, 2010 was passed and The Constitution (One Hundred and Thirteenth Amendment) Bill, 2010 (Amendment of Eighth Schedule), as amended, was passed.
