Answer

MINISTER OF STATE IN THE MINISTRY OF
MICRO, SMALL AND MEDIUM ENTERPRISES
(SHRI GIRIRAJ SINGH)

(a)&(b): Yes, Madam. The National Small Industries Corporation Limited (NSIC) offers quality training in Hi-Tech as well as conventional skill development programs of various durations from its 13 centres and 95 centres set up under Public-Private Partnership (PPP) mode across the country. The courses are designed in consultation with the local industries, so as to impart training in those skills which are in demand at local industries. NSIC also assists its trainees in getting employment through placement cells located at its centres. A list of centres set up by NSIC and centres set up under PPP mode for training in various parts of the country is given at Annexure.

NSIC also offers incubation training programme to create self-employment opportunities by imparting training in entrepreneurship building to the unemployed people who want to set up new small business enterprises in any of the manufacturing / services sectors. This model is also operated under Public-Private Partnership (PPP) mode.

(c): No, Madam. The Government in the Ministry of Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises has no proposal to set up similar organisation.

(d): Does not arise.
