Answer

Minister of State in the Ministry of Personnel, Public Grievances and Pensions and Minister of State in the Prime Minister's Office. (DR. JITENDRA SINGH)

- (a): There have been instances where an appeal to the First Appellate Authority as well to the Central Information Commission has been filed for non-supply of information within stipulated time.
- (b): The Right to Information Act, 2005 provides for imposition of penalty on the public information officer in case the information is not supplied within the stipulated time frame. It ensures timely supply of information. The Central Government has issued various guidelines for different stakeholders which have enabled the information seekers to get information as per provisions of the Right to Information Act.
- (c) & (d): Section 4(1)(a) of the Right to Information Act, 2005 provides that every public authority shall maintain all its records duly catalogued and indexed in a manner and the form which facilitates the right to information under the Act. There are provisions in the RTI Act for appeal/complaint in case of its non-compliance.
- (e): If the Information Commission at the time of deciding any complaint or appeal is of the opinion that the Public Information Officer has without any reasonable cause not furnished information within the time specified, it shall impose a penalty of two hundred and fifty rupees each day till application is received or information is furnished subject to the condition that the total amount of such penalty shall not exceed twenty five thousand rupees.
