Ttile: Need to restart Nursing Training Course for men.

SHRI RAMEN DEKA (MANGALDAI): The medical facilities in rural India are still very poor. The three years medical course is yet to be introduced. Most of the graduates of medicine prefer to serve in urban areas. Specialists in medical field never go to their rural postings. Few years back, there were male nurses in all States. But now almost all States have closed male nursing training course. We have huge population and if we train men in nursing courses, they can serve rural India as well and they can also go abroad.

In view of this, I urge upon the Government to restart the training course for men in nursing.
