

The hon. Member has raised a very strong objection about the naming of ships after great personalities. It may be his own view, but I can tell him that we have not only named the vessels after Netaji Subhas Bose and Vivekananda but two other tankers have been named after Jawaharlal Nehru and Lal Bahadur Shastri. It is the usual practice.

SHRI SAMAR GUHA : You have added two more names.

SHRI PRANAB KUMAR MUKHERJEE : It is the world-wide practice to name ships after great personalities.

SHRI SAMAR GUHA : Senseless.

SHRI PRANAB KUMAR MUKHERJEE : It may be senseless to him, but we find that there is nothing wrong in it. It is the practice in different parts of the world and we have only followed that practice. There is nothing wrong in that, so far as we are concerned.

Regarding Farakka waters and the commissioning of the Haldia port or the Haldia project, perhaps I have answered more than half a dozen times on the floor of this House. I do not find any relevance to the present Calling Attention Motion as to where the question of Farakka waters stands, when the Haldia port is going to be commissioned, how much time it will take, etc.,—all these facts are known to the hon. Members and it is no use asking questions again and again.

I do not think the hon. Member has put any other question.
