not here. We have the Industries (Regulation and Control) Act and if Government has power to ban strikes, they can ban retrenchment also in some special circumstances. Do we have to take it that Government remain helpless, as the Prime Minister and Mr. Hathi have both professed to be helpless, in the face of the retrenchment attack by Burmah Shell and that kind of people ?

SHRI RAGHU RAMAIAH: I am afraid there is no air of helplessness anywhere except in the imagination of my hon, friend. I have already indicated that efforts are being made by Mr. Hathi under the existing laws to call a tripartite meeting and tell them what is wrong and what is right and to come to a settlement. That is being done. What else can Government do?

SHRI H. N. MUKERJEE: I am quoting from a letter from the Ministry to the Secretary of the Petroleum Workers' Union, referring to an assurance given by the company concerned that they would not take recourse to retreachment, pending the report of the commission of inquiry, except in relation to the early voluntary retirement scheme. These 400 and odd people do not come under the early voluntary retirement scheme and yet they have been retrenched. He says, I am getting things out of my imagination !

SHRI RAGHU RAMAIAH: We do not appreciate the reasoning given by them for the retrenchment. It was done in undue haste. How to set the things right is being negotiated. (Interruptions)
